1) Megadeth-Rust in Peace: Live

Performing an album in it's entirety can be a double edged sword. On one hand, it gives you the chance to hear songs you never get to hear live. On the other hand, where's the spontaneity? Fortunately, it works really well for Dave Mustaine and Megadeth. Album classics like "Five Magics" and "Poison was the Cure" sound absolutely brutal in their non-studio versions. Filling out the set list are better known songs like "Symphony of Destruction". Drummer Shawn Drover and guitarist Chris Broderick (ex-Jag Panzer!) sound great here but the big news is the return of bassist David Ellefson, who fits the bass role in Megadeth like no other. With the metal mainstream finally remembering that thrash metal is still a contemporary force, it's great to see Mustaine and the boys are up to the task.

2) Peter Rowan Bluegrass Band-Legacy

The name of Peter Rowan's latest band leaves little doubt that they're all about bluegrass. Their debut as a group features guest appearances by Gillian Welch, Ricky Scaggs, Del McCoury and Dave Rawlings but the focus is, quite understandably, on the fantastic band. In addition to Grammy winning singer/guitarist Rowan, the band consists of Jody Stecher on mandolin, Keith Little on banjo and Paul Knight on upright bass. All four members sing, pulling off classic vocal harmonies, seemingly without effort. If your looking for traditional bluegrass played by expert musicians, look no further.

3) Benny Goodman-Happy Session

Could this import Cd be the beginning of a reissue series of the LP era Goodman catalog? Let's hope. This 1959 album originally featured four quintet and six orchestral songs and now comes with three alternate takes and a previously unreleased run through of "Cherokee". Plenty of juicy bits from Barney Kessel along the way.

4) Various Artists-Califia: The Songs of Lee Hazelwood This import compilation packs a whopping 25 songs onto a disc that spotlights the songs of the producer/songwriter Lee Hazelwood. Originally a disc jockey in Arizona, Hazelwood scored his first hit with rockabilly artist Sanford Clark. He then went on to have a string of instrumental hits with guitarist Duane Eddy. This Cd also features songs by Ann-Margret, Dusty Springfield, and Dino, Desi and Billy (the 1960's version of the Jonas Brothers). I was most pleased to see music by one of my personal favorites, Al Casey (you all have a copy of Al's "Surfin' Hootenanny", don't you?) Give this a listen and discover why Lee Hazelwood has a cult following among musicians.

5) Lez Zeppelin-Lez Zeppelin I
 Yep, that's no typo, it's L-E-Z Zeppelin. An all female Zep tribute with a gimmicky name just begs to be dismissed as a novelty act but...wow are they good. While the entire band is great, the highlight is guitarist Steph Paynes, who doesn't just get the notes right, she really gets the soul and vibe. 1960's Jimmy Page tone can be a tough one for modern guitarists, in part because it has less gain than you might think. Here, Paynes has apparently gotten her hands on all the correct vintage gear and recorded it all in wonderful analog. No gimmicks here folks.

6) Peter Walker-Rainy Day Raga
 The Cd debut of the American folk guitarist's 1966 Vanguard album. Often compared to John Fahey, Walker's music has a much deeper flamenco and classical Indian influence.

7) Herb Ellis-Nothing But the Blues/Meets Jimmy Giuffre

This reissue of two great Ellis albums contains the absolutely essential "Blues" album that teams him up with A-listers Stan Getz, Roy Eldridge, Ray Brown and Stan Levey. "Meets..." contains not only great arrangements and playing from the multi reed Giuffre but also Art Pepper, Bud Shank and Richie Kamucha.

8) Divination-Age of Man

Pennsylvania's death metal masters expand their sound into touches of prog and thrash on their second album. The blitzkrieg speed and unrelenting vocals are still in force, just with a wider palate of colors that should bring them to the eyes of more metal fans.

9) Death Cube K-Torn from Black Space

Don't know who Death Cube K is? Fear not, that's no rapper name. It's no coincidence that when rearranged, the letters spell out buCKet head. This is Buckethead's name for his ambient project with bassist/producer Bill Laswell. This go round also features DJ Submerged on "electronics". This is ambient music of the deep, dark kind, no airport music here.

10) Neurosis-Live at Roadburn 2007

The fact that it takes 78 minutes to get through 9 songs is par for the course for experimental metal band Neurosis. Recorded during the tour for "Given to the Rising", it shows the band in all their sludgy, mid-tempo glory.
