Other Zeppelin to mount headlining tour

As rumored for some time, Zeppelin will be appearing at June's Bonnaroo Festival, but it will be Lez Zeppelin, not the much more famous British heavy metal legends.

The New York City-based all-girl cover band, which performs only Led Zeppelin material, will become the first tribute band ever asked to appear at the multi-day outdoor festival, now in its seventh year. The June 12 Bonnaroo appearance comes at the tail end of the group's current headlining run, which kicks off Feb. 28 in Pittsburgh, PA and hits more than 20 cities. All dates are below.

The band, which formed in 2004, features lead vocalist Sarah McLellan, guitarist Steph Paynes, bassist/keyboardist Lisa Brigantino and drummer Helen Destroy.

The band recently released a self-titled debut album, recorded with producer/engineer Eddie Kramer, who worked on Led Zeppelin's original recordings. Kramer's handiwork also appears on records by Jimi Hendrix, KISS and AC/DC, among other classic rock favorites. Additionally, the set was mastered by George Marino, who digitally remastered all of Led Zeppelin's original recordings with Jimmy Page.

Lez Zeppelin | tickets | appeared at several summer festivals last year, including the UK's Download Festival, New Orleans' Voodoo Festival and two German music festivals, Rock-Im-Park and Rock-Am-Ring.
